AIR FLOTILLA ON FLIGHT

STORMS CLAIM HEAVY TOLL; HOUSES RAZED

MANILA, Jan. 6.—As reports trickled in over crippled lines of communication it was apparent today that the typhoon which swept over the Visayan group of islands took a heavier toll than at first reported.

Latest available figures disclosed there were 100 deaths on the island of Cebu and fourteen at Leyte.

The Camotes Islands, near Cebu, least six persons dead, several score injured and property damage estimated to be in the thousands of dollars was the known toll today of a freak tornado which swept over parts of North Carolina late yesterday.

The greatest damage appeared to have been done in and around Norlina, where six Negroes were killed when four dwellings and a Negro school building were demolished by the impact of high winds. A number of Negroes also were injured.

Serious damage was also done in Caswell County. A number of buildings were demolished, many others were unroofed and hundreds of trees were uprooted. Several injuries were reported but none of them was serious.

A Red Cross unit was marshaled to go to the stricken area from Manila.

QUIZZED IN DEATH

Robert F. Langdon, above, known as a "dandy" on the Washington, D. C., police force has been held for questioning in connection with the mystery death of Miss Beulah Limerick, usherette in a capital theater. Several other of the girl's male acquaintances have been quizzed also. Thought dead of natural causes, an autopsy later showed a bullet in the girl's brain.

WEATHER FAVORING ITALIAN PLANES ON DARING OCEAN TRIP

Expected At Brazil Tuesday At 5 p. m.; Maintain Speed

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 6.—Favored by fair weather and clear skies all along the Brazilian coast, the flotilla of Italian seaplanes commanded by General Italo Balbo, flying from Portuguese Guinea to Brazil, was expected to reach Natal today about 5 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time), according to latest advices received here.

The Brazilian government wireless office at Fernando Noronha reported that the Italian planes answered a wireless call sent out shortly before 10 a. m. Eastern standard time, and advised that all of the planes were making good progress. They did not give their position, however.

The Fernando Noronha station said the weather in that vicinity was favorable for the flight.

ROME, Jan. 6.—The Italian seaplane flotilla under General Italo Balbo at seven a. m. G. M. T. today (3 a. m. Eastern standard time) was well over the south Atlantic on its way to Brazil and proceeding "according to schedule."

This was learned here in radio messages from Italian cruisers posted along the flight route, who reported communication with the planes and assurances that all was well.

BOLAMA, Portuguese Guinea, Jan. 6.—Carrying the spectacular exploits of man a step further, the flotilla of twelve Italian seaplanes commanded by General Italo Balbo, It Duce's air minister, sped straight across the south Atlantic today in a triangle formation dash for South America.

The four squadrons of double-pointed monoplane soared out of the harbor here at 2 a. m., the tropic moon shimmering in silvery splendor on their widespread wings.

The orchestra drone of motors was punctuated by the cheers of crowds as the machines swept majestically into the night sky, bound for Natal, Brazil, a water jump of some 1,850 miles.

Each of the planes, capable of averaging 100 miles per hour for an estimated sixty-five total number of flying hours, was manned by four intrepid airmen. These included two pilots, a mechanic and a radio operator. The ships are powered with tandem motors that develop a total of 1,120 horsepower.

The flotilla rode at anchor here for the past two weeks, awaiting a full moon for the hazardous attempt to span the south Atlantic. The fliers face a strong possibility of encountering sudden tropical storms common during the summer season along the route they are flying.

Weather reports indicate that favorable conditions prevailed over the ocean for the first half of the flight, but prospects remained uncertain nearer the Brazilian coast.

DAUGHERTY LOSES IN ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE PLEADING TO CHARGE

MAY BE IMPEACHED

Governor Henry H. Horton of Tennessee has been threatened with impeachment by legislators because of state funds on deposit in banks which went down in the crash of Rogers Caldwell. Critics allege there was insufficient security.

Washington Judge Denies Demurrer Filed By Defense

WASHINGTON, C. H., O., Jan. 6.—Mal S. Daugherty, former president of the Ohio State Bank here, now defunct, who has successfully resisted pleading to the seventeen indictments returned against him for alleged mis-handling of funds of the bank for more than two months, today lost his fight to escape pleading.

In an opinion given late Monday, Judge Harry M. Rankin, of the Fayette County common pleas court, overruled a demurrer which Daugherty had filed to the first of the seventeen indictments. This particular indictment contains five counts, charging misapplication of credit, misapplication of funds, abstraction of funds, embezzlement and issuing a fraudulent check.

The defense attacked the indictment on the grounds that "the alleged facts therein do not constitute an offense against the laws of the state of Ohio." Supporting the demurrer, Daugherty's attorneys charged improper use of the term "credit" in the count charging misapplication of credit.

Judge Rankin cited the recent cases in Cincinnati in which the word "credit" had been used and its use sustained by the common pleas court.

The prosecution has until Wednesday to file answers or demurrers to the pleas in abatement which Daugherty filed to the other sixteen indictments against him on December 31.

The state's case in the sensational suit is now in the hands of Norman L. McLean, new prosecutor of Fayette County, who took office Monday. It was expected that he would retain former Prosecutor W. S. Paxson and his assistant, A. N. Browning, as aids in the case.

ECONOMY MAYOR

Members of the Youngstown, O., city council, opposed to a drastic economy program instituted by Mayor Joseph L. Heffernan by which the city's police and fire departments have been put on half time, have announced they will attempt to overrule the plan. In addition to the half time order Mayor Heffernan, above, has closed six of Youngstown's eleven fire stations.

MESSAGE TO SOLONS FAVORS EQUITABLE ADJUSTMENT OF TAX

Points To Responsibility For Welfare Work In "Swan Song"

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 6.—Dealing at length upon the problems of taxation and welfare, and declaring that "responsibility is inescapable," Governor Myers Y. Cooper today delivered to the eighty-ninth biennial session of the Ohio general assembly his "swan song" as chief executive of the state.

On January 12, Governor Cooper will hand over the reins of the state government to his successor, Governor-elect George White of Marietta. His message today reviewed the accomplishments of his administration, and pointed out the way for the state's new legislators.

Taxation, especially, is one of the important problems of the general assembly, Governor Cooper said. He added however, that it "seems inadvisable for me to do more at this time than to stress the fundamental aims which are to be achieved by changes in the system of taxation in Ohio."

The first and foremost objective in securing the "absolutely necessary revenues in the writing of a new tax law," Governor Cooper declared, is "more tax from those who have not paid their share and less tax from those who have been paying more than their share."

"It should be borne in mind," he said, "that the primary purpose of a general revision of a taxation system, is an equitable adjustment of the tax burden rather than an increase in revenue."

Among those who should benefit in any revised taxation system, Governor Cooper recommended, are the farmer and the home owner who, he declared, "have in the past borne more than their share of the taxation burden; and to certain classes of business property so that Ohio industry may compete with similar enterprises in surrounding states."

With regard to the matter of welfare, the governor asserted that the general assembly will be confronted with no problem "deserving more thoughtful and more earnest consideration, or calling for more immediate and definite action than that of adequate provision for the care and comfort of the unfortunate wards of the state."

FOUR POSTMASTERS DISCHARGED AFTER BUYING THEIR JOBS

Indiana Scandal Is Revealed By Postal Authorities

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The department of justice was submitted information today that may develop into a political scandal.

Four postmasters in Indiana were ousted out of their jobs today on the charge of the post office department that they "had paid or were causing to be paid" various sums to "a congressman" for their appointment.

The investigation which led to the dismissal order of the department late yesterday, was instigated by Senators Watson and Robinson, Republicans of Indiana. They said rumors were so common in the first district of their state that postmasters were buying their jobs from a congressman that they asked the department to investigate.

Those thrown out of office by the post office department were: Otto A. Wellbrenner, Mount Vernon; William E. Davidson, Petersburg; McKinley Ayres, Chrysine; and Mrs. Helen Roetzler, Boonville.

Ross Wible, rural carrier at Dale was suspended from duty.

Senator Watson, who is the majority leader in the senate, said he gave Postmaster Brown all information he received concerning the alleged scandal. He termed the affair as "unfortunate" and remarked that he and Robinson wanted the case handled by the proper government department.

SHIP WRECKED BUT CREW SAFE

DUNGENESS, England, Jan. 6.—The British steamer Nutterton, a 6,500-ton ship, crashed ashore today in a dense fog off the coast here and broke its back.

Lifeboats from the coast guard stood by to take off the crew of fifty men. The ship is believed to be a total loss.

PRESIDENT WILL BE ASKED TO DEDICATE HARDING MEMORIAL

Trustees Will Invite Coolidge To Preside At Program

MARION, O., Jan. 6.—The frequently-postponed and long delayed dedication of the memorial to the late President Warren G. Harding appeared a certainty today following action of the trustees of the Harding Memorial Association in adopting a resolution to invite President Hoover to deliver the dedicatory address.

The action also resolved to extend an invitation to former President Coolidge to preside at the ceremony. These invitations will be delivered personally to President Hoover and Mr. Coolidge by Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, president of the association.

The date for the dedication was left to the pleasure of President Hoover and Mr. Coolidge. The resolution suggested the ceremony be held between May 15 and November 15, but it was understood that, because of weather conditions, the date not earlier than June 15 and not later than October 15.

The resolution, which was passed unanimously, was introduced by Harry M. Daugherty, United States attorney general under President Harding. Although only six of the twenty-two trustees were present, letters were received from a majority giving assurance that any action taken would meet with the approval of the absentees.

Letters were received from former President Coolidge, John Barton Payne, head of the National Red Cross; Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury; United States Senator James J. Davis, secretary of labor in the Harding cabinet; Harry S. New, former postmaster general; George B. Christian, secretary to President Harding, and Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes. Those present were Daugherty, Hoke Donihue, secretary of the association; James Prendergast, vice president of the association; John A. Schroeder, Charles B. King and Dr. Carl W. Sawyer. All are Marion business and professional men except Daugherty. Dr. Sawyer is the son of the late Dr. C. E. Sawyer, personal physician to President Harding.

DIRT FARMER NAMED AGRICULTURE HEAD BY NEW GOVERNOR

La Rue Banker Named; Cincinnati Man Is White Secretary

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 6.—Governor-elect George White, of Marietta, today announced his selection of Alfred C. Crouse, 58, of Cincinnati, as his secretary. The post pays $5,000 a year.

Crouse, well-known former newspaperman, was actively connected with the Bowling Green Sentinel-Tribune for several years. He was also connected with newspapers in Findlay, Toledo and Cincinnati.

For the last sixteen years, Crouse has been chief probation officer of the Hamilton County court of domestic relations.

I. S. Guthrie, La Rue banker, and former "dirt farmer," state legislator, and rural school teacher, is White's selection for state director of agriculture.

Though now president of the Campbell National Bank at La Rue, Guthrie has been engaged in farming almost all his life and now owns an 800-acre farm in Marion County and operates an additional 700 acres with his two sons.

During the administration of former Governor James M. Cox, Guthrie served two terms as representative from Marion County, later being appointed to the board of administration which then supervised state institutions.

FAMILY MIX-UP ENDS IN DEATH

Former Ohioan Kills Uncle In Fight

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 6.—"Before he married Charlotte, she was a Christian. After he married her he got her away from the church and took her out to parties."

That was the assertion made today by James T. Bentley, recent arrival here from Ohio, who shot Frank Johnson, 24, an electrician, according to police, when Johnson was being upbraided by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Rose Bentley, for bringing a bottle of liquor into the house.

Mrs. Johnson said she would testify that Bentley was trying to eject her and her husband from the house to make room for himself.

The killing of Johnson brought to light a most unusual situation. Three years ago, according to police Mrs. Johnson's sister, Ione, was widowed when Bentley's brother, Frank, shot and killed Raymond Parker. Bentley said he mistook Parker for a burglar. Absolved by a coroner's jury, he was never prosecuted.

Frank Bentley was Parker's father-in-law. James Bentley was Johnson's uncle by marriage.

COMMUNIST MARCH HALTED BY POLICE

CLEVELAND, Jan. 6.—Staunch efforts of city policemen today were accredited with halting a communistic "hunger march" in which more than 700 unemployed took part, without injury and damage to property.

Starting at the public square in a cold driving rain, and singing "Solidarity Forever," the agitators paraded through the streets to the city hall where they were met by three long lines of policemen, headed by Acting Chief George Matowitz.

After sending a group of representatives into the hall to ask city council for relief for unemployed, the marchers left the municipal building with orders from their leaders to "take what you want in the way of food if council won't give it to you."

BANDITS GETS $10,000 GEMS

CLEVELAND, Jan. 6.—Posing as a customer, a daring bandit today held up the Greenwood Jewelry Store here and escaped with jewelry, watches and diamonds valued at more than $10,000, police said.

Entering the store shortly after it had opened for business, the robber told Harry Karr, watchmaker, that he wanted a watch.

Producing a gun, he herded Karr and Herman Art, manager of the store, and Sol Price, assistant manager, behind the counter.

"Dish out those jewels," the gunman told Art, pointing to a tray of higher priced diamonds and jewelry. After stuffing the loot in his pockets, the bandit calmly walked out of the store and disappeared.

DAYTON GROCER IS ACCUSED OF FRAUD

DAYTON, O., Jan. 6.—Oscar Blum, Dayton grocer, was arrested here today on charges of having defrauded the Welfare Association of the local community chest on tickets issued to the unemployed for the purpose of purchasing groceries.

Police said the tickets, having a face value of $3.60, were cashed as low as $2.00. Blum is believed to have obtained several thousand dollars in this manner.

MICHAEL E. GRAHAM PLANS RETIREMENT FROM POLICE FORCE

Files Application For Pension; Ill Health Is Blamed

Michael E. Graham, 63, former chief of police, who voluntarily retired to the position of day desk sergeant at a police headquarters last March 20, is expected to retire from the force altogether on pension, effective February 1, because of advanced age and declining health.

The veteran member of the department has made application to the Police Pension and Relief Fund Trustees for retirement on that date and the trustees, carrying out a plan decided upon when the department was re-organized last March, will act favorably upon the application.

The former police chief will be the first member of the department to take advantage of the newly-created police pension and relief fund, which is being made available for the first time this year.

Whether the monthly pension he will receive will be on the basis of his former salary of $135 a month as police chief or his present salary of $100 a month as day desk man, has not been definitely decided by the trustees. Members of the board expressed the opinion, however, that the pension would be based on his former salary. Under this arrangement he would receive slightly more than $80 monthly as compensation for long service.

Graham has served continuously as a regular member of the department since June 6, 1907 and for one year prior to this date he acted as a special officer. He was appointed police chief April 1, 1920 to succeed James H. Canady, resigned, and headed the force for ten years until last March 20, when he voluntarily retired to the post of day desk sergeant, pending retirement from the force on pension as soon as the relief fund became operative this year.

GERMANY WILL ABOLISH DOLE

Will Use Money To Aid Factories

STUTTGART, Germany, Jan. 6.—Plans for drastic changes in the financial policy of Chancellor Heinrich Brüning and his cabinet, including abolishment of the government's unemployment dole of three billion marks annually, were revealed today in a sensational speech delivered at a party congress here by Finance Minister Hermann Dietrich.

The revelation came like a bombshell, astounding not only the delegates but all of Germany.

Equally surprising was the subsequent plan unveiled by Dr. Dietrich in regard to the disposal in the future of the three billion marks to be withdrawn from support of the unemployed.

"We propose," he declared, "to use this money to increase production through a lower cost of raw material to the production and manufacturing interests, especially aiding those who use much important raw material."

In this way, he pointed out, it was hoped employment would be provided of its own volition.

"TOO SICK"—ENDS LIFE

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 6.—"Too sick to live," was the explanation left in a note today by Herbert Harris, 40, whose body was found in the room of a hotel here.

TAXI DRIVER SLAIN BY MAN AND WOMAN

CLEVELAND, Jan. 6.—John R. Wood, 42, taxi driver was shot and killed at a street intersection on Cleveland's east side today.

Wood had been shot once in the chest. His body was found by police when residents reported an intoxicated man was lying in the street. One man was found who said he had heard Wood arguing with someone and then heard a shot.

Robbery was believed by police to have been the motive of the attack of the taxi driver, although $6.86 was found in the dead man's pockets.

Foot tracks in the snow indicated to police that Wood's assailants had been a woman and a man.

QUITS FARM BOARD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Chris L. Christensen, of Minden, Neb., secretary of the federal farm board, today resigned to become dean of the college of agriculture and director of the agriculture experiment station at the University of Wisconsin. He asked the resignation be made effective early in the spring.

WEATHER DELAYS FLIGHT TO PARIS

HAMPTON ROADS, Va., Jan. 6.—William S. McLaren and his daring, red-headed co-pilot, Mrs. Beryl Hart, took a peek at the rainy weather hereabouts before dawn today and decided to postpone their attempt to "find" the Bermuda Islands until tomorrow morning.

They were in high spirits to start again the first leg of their flight to Paris with a commercial cargo of merchandise. The amphibian monoplane, "Trade Wind," was in prime condition but the weather man failed them.

FOUR PULLMANS ON PENNSY DERAILED

PATASKALA, O., Jan. 6.—Four Pullman cars on the Commercial Express, crack flier of the Pennsylvania Railroad, were derailed today by a broken rail while the train was traveling at a high rate of speed. No one was injured.

Wrecking crews were dispatched to the scene from Columbus and Newark and within an hour, the train continued its eastward trip. The Commercial Express is one of the fastest passenger trains of the Pennsylvania system and runs between St. Louis and New York.

Company officials were unable to explain the cause of the broken rail but expressed opinion it was caused by expansion due to cold weather.

DECISION IN FRAUD CASE REVERSED BY COURT OF APPEALS

Decision of Common Pleas Court favoring Elmer M. Thomas, plaintiff in a suit against Cordelia Berry and her husband Frederick Berry, Chicago, Ill., has been reversed by the second district court of appeals.

Alleging fraud, Thomas asserted in his petition the defendants induced his grandfather, the late Alexander Morgan, to execute to them a deed for certain real estate owned by him in Xenia, the conveyance taking place August 2, 1927. Mr. Morgan died at the age of 82 in September, 1929. Frederick Berry was a brother-in-law of the decedent.

The grandson sued for cancellation of the deed and won his case in the trial court.

The petition charged the Berrys took the aged man to Chicago, Ill. and afterward had him committed to Hines Hospital; that on the day the deed to the defendants was made they induced Morgan to mortgage his real estate, obtaining $352, which they also took to Chicago; and that Morgan was incapable mentally to transact business, but that the defendants took advantage of his infirmities to fraudulently induce him to convey the property to them without paying any consideration.

GRAND JURY RETURNS EIGHT TRUE BILLS HERE ON MONDAY

Investigating eight cases, the January grand jury reported six true bills involving five persons, ignored two cases and continued another late Monday afternoon after being in session all day in Common Pleas Court. Twenty-seven witnesses were examined. Norman Jamerson, 53, colored, 803 E. Church St., was indicted on two counts of shooting with intent to kill Mrs. Hattie Evans, 36, and her daughter, Beatrice Welch, 19, also colored, in front of the home of the women at 849 E. Church St. last November 28.

An indictment for cutting with intent to kill was returned against Albert Clark, 56, colored, E. Third St., who is alleged to have inflicted stab wounds in the back and chest of St. John, Earl, 21, during a dispute over a trivial matter at their home last November 10. The son, it is claimed, aroused the ire of his father by refusing to put a lump of coal in the stove.

Willard Williams, alleged to have been an accomplice of Irvin T. Shoemaker, 26, now confined in Ohio Penitentiary, was indicted on a charge of breaking into and entering the office of the Still Coal Co., last October 16 with intent to steal. Shoemaker, who confessed to eight of twenty-two burglaries laid at his door by police, was sentenced to serve a minimum term of thirty years in prison.

Other indictments were against G. R. Bocklet, 104 Bellbrook Ave., for possessing liquor last October 25 and against Otis Jackson, for obtaining money under false pretenses.

FARM HOUSE BURNED TO GROUND MONDAY

An eight-room two-story, frame house on the farm owned by Mrs. Ivy Neatherton, Fairground Road, four miles northwest of Xenia, burned to the ground Monday morning with loss estimated at $1,200. The house was uninhabited. Origin of the fire has not been determined but was discovered by one of the Neatherton children about 6:30 a. m. Monday. At that time the flames had gained such headway that it was impossible to save the structure. The house, located about 300 feet from the Neatherton home, was formerly the Holverson home. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

FIREMEN BATTLE FLAMES IN SISAL

Firemen labored for most of the night and into the wee hours of the morning Tuesday before being able to completely extinguish a fire smoldering in a huge pile of sisal stored in a warehouse at the new mill of The Hooven and Allison Co., Cincinnati Ave. The alarm was turned in at 11:58 p. m. and the fire apparatus did not return to the engine house until 5:23 a. m. The blaze, which apparently started from spontaneous combustion, was confined to the one sisal pile and the warehouse, a brick building, was not endangered. Firemen soaked the pile with water for nearly five hours.

FOOD INDUSTRY CLOSED YEAR WITH GOOD FINANCIAL RECORD

By W. S. COUSINS
Financial Editor I. N. S.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The food industry closed 1930 with a favorable financial record, for which the acceleration of sales effort and concentration upon improved manufacture processes were in a large degree responsible, according to C. M. Chester, Jr., president of General Foods Corporation.

Mr. Chester, in his survey of the food industry for International News Service also points out that economies made possible by timely mergers have also played their part in the 1930 records of important sections of the industry.

"Though the earnings exhibit for the year will not reveal the same ratio of increase as during the more prosperous periods," said Mr. Chester, "there is every assurance that however much business generally may be affected, the food industry will remain unimpaired. Our population is still increasing; for food must be consumed."

Thomas H. McInerney, president of the National Dairy Products Corporation, says that in his opinion there will be no important change in the business situation "until the soil is made to yield its crops of basic commodities—cotton, corn and wheat—and the mines their output of mineral ores, in production profitable to the farming and mining industries of the country."

"Prosperity for the entire country depends not so much on the listed prices of securities but more on the profitable property production of basic commodities," said Mr. McInerney.

"Dairying is one of the great industries of the country and naturally its operations are vitally interlinked with agriculture. The National Dairy Products Corporation pays out to the farmers in cash every week approximately $5,000,000. The prosperity of those sources of capital is, therefore, of especial concern to such organizations as National Dairy and as I have said, in final analysis the key to any solution of such disturbed conditions as we are now experiencing."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither their shadow of turning.—James, 1, 17.

UNWORTHY APPEALS

A time when business is slow and there is much unemployment, makes a kind of paradise for unworthy applicants for charity. Such a person, who in ordinary times gets many cold looks, and is frequently given "the gate," may be welcomed as a long lost brother now.

Someone speaks of watching the pathetic bread line in a big city a few days ago. It deeply impressed him by its sickening tragedy. But he lost a little of the illusion, when he saw what one man did with a suit of underclothing that was given him. This fellow took the nice warm garments and sold them for a few coins, and used them to buy liquor.

There is always a tendency in times like these, to exaggerate the distress and unemployment. It is said there are always 1,000,000 unemployed in the country. Of these probably half are unworthy people who do not want to work. The other half are changing their work for some good reason, and in due time will get a job somewhere else. There are always wasteful and idle and dissipated people, who are parasites on the community. These people flourish in a time like this, and people cheerfully give them things.

Our people in Ohio must not blind their eyes to real distress. There is plenty of real trouble, and there are many honest and industrious seekers for work who can not find it. These people must have help. It is better to assist some unworthy ones, rather than let the worthy go hungry or poorly clothed.

Unless people personally know needy families or those asking for help, it is usually best to have charity distributed through well organized societies, whose skilled workers are trained to discriminate between the two classes of poverty. It is a distressing tragedy, and one that menaces the welfare of the country, when industrious people can not find work.

ONE BIG ISSUE

Senator Borah of Idaho recently made a penetrating remark regarding propositions to promote a third political party. He said that it takes "one single dominating issue accompanied by a dramatic crisis, to swing people from their old political moorings." Quite so.

In 1854, when the Republican party was organized, the slavery question created such a single dominating issue. But there is no such single dominating issue now.

Some people think that the regulation of the real or alleged abuses of corporations, and the more equal distribution of wealth constitute such an issue. Others think that prohibition is the most dominating issue. Now if the people who think that the stricter regulation of corporations and wealth constitute the one big issue, should go off by themselves in a new party, the question would arise what they were going to do about prohibition.

If they come out for prohibition, they alienate the "wets." And if they call for repeal or modification of prohibition, then they antagonize the "drys." They would split into two parties, the dry corporation regulators, and the wet corporation regulators. Thus their movement would be broken up and lose its power.

The Republican and Democratic parties are both old and faulty. They come out with truly noble emphasis for the things that everyone believes in, but they gracefully straddle controversial questions. But they do represent somewhat different ideas and traditions, and hence will survive for some years yet.

People who want to carry out their ideas on corporations, wealth, and prohibition, will probably have to work through the old parties for years to come, and seek to mould one or both of them to adopt their principles.

ALL TAKE HOLD IN 1931

Recent years have shown a growth of what is called civic spirit. People realize more than they did formerly, that they are partners in the life of their home city, that it is helpful to them if their home town prospers, while they lose if it does not do so well.

Now what we need is still more of this feeling, and willingness on the part of all our people to do what we can for Middletown. Any kind of useful service helps. People who work energetically on their job assist. Those who carry on their organizations are of high value. Those who maintain attractive home places help more than they realize. We can all do something for this cause.

EXPLOSION OF A HARD-BOILED EGG

He sat in the corner and gloomed. He fumed and he raged and he spluttered and at last he blew up. He said:

"Don't you dare to forgive me. I won't have it. I won't stand for it! If I've done something you don't like, get mad at me. Don't be so sweet about it. Spit it out and say what you think about me. Don't be kind and understanding. Blow me up! Don't be forgiving!"

"I can stand anything. I can stand hard words or a sock on the jaw. I can stand sarcasm and abuse, but I can't stand Forgiveness. I can fight back if you oppose me, if you tell me exactly what you think of me—but I can't fight forgiveness."

"When you forgive me, you're taking a Mean Advantage. you're hitting below the belt. I KNOW YOU. You aren't really feeling kind and generous when you tell me you forgive me, you are really being cruel and subtle and trying to put me in the wrong. . . . And I Won't Have It! I want to fight, and you won't let me. You insist on being Superior. You say you forgive me and I don't deserve forgiveness. I'm tough, I'm mean—but you won't let me be a Hard-Boiled Egg. You insist on being kind to me . . . and understanding . . . and I Don't Like It. It puts me on the bum and I hate being put on the bum. You win, and I can't fight back when you forgive me. You're a hypocrite, you're not really forgiving at all—you just say you are, but how can I prove it, how can I win if you won't fight. It takes two to make a fight, and YOU won't fight. That's dirty of you, that's being crooked. I'm Mad. I want to stay Mad. . . . and You Won't Let Me."

"But I'll get back at you. Sometime when you're angry at me, manufacturing hate and shooting hard words at me, I'll get back at you. . . . I'll be a Christian, too. I'll suddenly see you as you are. I'll suddenly, in a flash, see you as you are. I'll see you as mean and hard and bad-tempered as you pretend. And I'll forgive you as you are forgiving me this minute. I'll say you're Not Yourself today, that you're saying things you don't really mean, and I'll take all the wind out of your sails. I'll get even, you just wait until I Forgive YOU!"

That's how the hard-boiled egg exploded, and I think I get his point of view. . . . Don't you?

THE QUESTION BOX

—Central Press Wash. Bureau—

Answers to questions on information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

What is the legend which is woven about 'Tre Fontane,' a spot outside of Rome?

Tre Fontane, which means "Three Fountains," was the traditional scene of Saint Paul's martyrdom. According to the legend, it was here that, when the apostle's head was struck off, it made three fountains, and at each spot a spring gushed forth. Over the springs stands the church of Saint Paul without the walls, which contains the column to which Saint Paul was bound.

GULF STREAM

What is the gulf stream? The gulf stream is the most important and best-known current in the Atlantic ocean, driving its name from the Gulf of Mexico, out of which it flows between the coast of Florida on the west and the Bahamas on the east. Its breadth in the narrowest portion is about 50 miles, and its depth about 2,000 feet; the velocity averages between two and three miles per hour, reaching an extreme of five or six miles in some localities. This stream has a temperature several degrees higher than the ocean. Its direction is northeasterly, flowing past and keeping the British Isles temperate.

TRENT AFFAIR

What was the Trent Affair? The Trent Affair was a diplomatic episode growing out of the seizure by an American vessel on November 8, 1861, during the Civil war in America, of two Confederate commissioners on board a British mail steamer. In the autumn of 1861 the Confederate government sent John S. Reid and James M. Mason as commissioners to France and England, respectively. They embarked at Havana for England on the British mail steamer "Trent." On November 8 Captain Charles Wilkes of the United States vessel San Jacinto stopped the Trent and took the commissioners as prisoners. Although this act was applauded by many people, President Lincoln and Secretary of State Seward recognized its impropriety and disapproved it, and when a formal demand was made by the British ministry for the surrender of the two men, it was complied with and an apology tendered, on the ground that they had been forcibly taken from a neutral vessel on the high seas and upon a voyage from one neutral point to another.

DEW

What causes dew? Does it really fall? In spite of the expression, "the dew is falling," dew does not fall. It is formed on the ground. The warmer air comes in contact with the cooler vegetation on the ground, which causes the moisture in the air to condense on the cooler surface.

RED TAPE

How did the expression "red tape" acquire the meaning of official delay? According to Webster's New International Dictionary, the reason that official formality or long drawn-out litigation is popularly known as red tape is because red tape has been "used in public offices for tying up documents, etc."

JURY

Why is the list of the members of a jury called a "panel"? Formerly a little pane or oblong piece of pavement was used for the purpose of listing the names of jurors and the list of the members of a jury is still called a panel.

EVIDENCE OF DECAY

NEW YORK CITY, New York.—Getting back to our beginning—all these considerations and more were involved in the robust, yet timid appreciation that my old friend Monte trotted out, as he exhibited to me that jack-knife, souvenir of the speakeasy, on Christmas Eve.

It embodied the fine fruitlessness that pervades all made enjoyments—and especially the enjoyment of getting together with a lot of men, around a bar and arguing about everything in general and nothing in particular—no one trying to convince the other, but each enjoying at once the sound of his own voice, the clearness of his own opinions—and the sense of masculine society.

The decay of the tavern is an evidence of the decay of the general spirit of democracy.

The survival of the speakeasy is merely man's poor attempt to strengthen the outraged masculine spirit of equality.

OVER THE HILL TO THE POOR HOUSE!

REPUBLICAN REGULARS, PROGRESSIVE ELEMENT HEADED FOR SHOWDOWN

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The holidays have not been so happy a season as usual in high-up Republican circles in Washington.

To most politicians the party looks to be driving hard in the direction of a regular Taft-Roosevelt split and its managers have been too worried to enjoy the festivities.

Of course the Democratic bosses have been correspondingly joyful. Still, the threatened G. O. P. rift clouds even the Jeffersonians' prospects with a certain amount of unreliability. Uprisings against authority are contagious. Mutiny in one major political group ranks might encourage the unruly element on the other side to kick over the traces.

In the background, during several past administrations, the realization has lurked at both national headquarters that neither the Republican nor the Democratic organization represents a single principle any longer beyond the respective leaders' desire to stay in office or get into office and run things.

Virtually everyone knows that a realignment is needed, to give a real meaning to elections.

If the Republican party were to break in two, it would break, roughly speaking, into a conservative section and a liberal section. After that, the natural thing would be for the Democratic party to break in two also, and then for the conservative Republicans and the conservative Democrats to join forces and the liberal Republicans and the liberal Democrats to do likewise, forming two new parties.

That is to say, that's the answer to the problem, the way it works out on paper.

It failed to happen so in 1912, when the late Colonel Roosevelt tried to prove it by running for president as a progressive. It failed again in 1924, when a Republican and a Democrat, the late Senator Robert La Follette and Senator Burton K. Wheeler, tested it by running in combination as independent candidates for the presidency and vice presidency.

The flaw in the calculation is obvious enough—the two old-line parties, which have ceased to signify anything, refuse to divide into two new parties, each of which does signify something; they divide into four or five or more new parties.

There evidently is not the right number. It would seem as if Colonel Roosevelt and La Follette and Wheeler had demonstrated that conclusively.

Yet experimenters persist in monkeying with it. Even now, as a result of the G. O. P. ruckus, Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico, violently outraged by standard Republicans' attacks upon Senator George W. Norris, is credibly reported to be negotiating with Gifford Pinchot, newly-elected governor of Pennsylvania, relative to placing the latter at the head of a progressive Republican national ticket in 1932.

And then what? Why, there would be two dry tickets in the field—the Pinchot ticket, and in all probability, the Hoover ticket—and one wet ticket, for the Democrats almost certainly will nominate a wet two years hence anyway, and would do so to an absolutely immortal cliché in such a contingency. And a perfect hedge-podge of voting would ensue, vastly entertaining but with about as much bearing as the Einstein theory upon any sort of party re-alignment, and likely also to leave the prohibition issue as muddled as ever—for a three-way result would be calculated to make a definite conclusion mighty difficult to draw.

Nevertheless, it is hard to see how the Republican regulars and progressives can avoid going to the mat.

The pre-Hoover old guardmen do not want to do it.

However, they have no option, due to the policy shaped for their official organization by its executive director, Robert H. Lucas—or, to express it more exactly, due to the fact that he was caught in his activities.

True, the administration could have averted a fight by repudiating Director Lucas, but the defense of his course by such White House spokesmen as Senator Otis F. Glenn of Illinois and Representative Will R. Wood of Indiana forces all hands, with any regard for regularity, to join in an effort to exterminate insurrection.

The insurgents are equally without a choice.

They have proof positive that at least one of them, Senator Norris, was marked by Director Lucas of the G. O. P. national committee for a shot in the back during the last campaign, after Chairman Simeon D. Fess of the same committee had assured him of its support.

Naturally none of them feels safe with Director Lucas still on the job in his own rear, and they have it straight that there he will stay. Obviously they have got to fight.

After the holiday meals one needs a period of simple ones to rest one's digestion. The one printed today would serve nicely. It may be made simpler by replacing the salad suggested with another.

Today's Recipes

Salad—A salad that is easily prepared is made by arranging a slice of pineapple on a bed of water-cress. Garnish the top of the pineapple with cubes of mint jelly. Serve with fruit French dressing.

Cinnamon apples filled with celery and toasted almonds makes a delicious salad to serve with roast fowl.

"Old Country" Cookies—One cup butter, three-fourths cup sifted sugar, three egg yolks, a few drops almond extract, one quart sifted flour. Wash and cream the butter and add the sugar. Add the well beaten egg yolks, the almond extract and the flour. Knead well and roll into a thin sheet. If necessary, chill, after which, roll as thin as possible. Cut into different shapes with fancy cutters. Brush over with slightly beaten egg white. Sprinkle with chopped walnut meats, shredded blanched almonds or press a halved nut, a raisin or a bit of citron on the cookie tops. Bake in a moderate oven until delicately browned.

Suggestions
Doll's Bureau

A toy that costs nothing and can even be made by a child is a doll's bureau, or dresser, consisting of six little match boxes and the mirror from some worn out purse. Glue the boxes together so the bureau is three boxes deep and two boxes wide. Paste white (or any preferred color) paper over the top, sides and front of the drawers. Sew on beads for handles. Two all-day sucker sticks glued on the back so they project one-half inch below the drawers, make a support on which the mirror is fastened. Cut two pieces one-half inch long from another sucker stick for the front legs. The result is charming.

Pajamas for Kitchen
Kitchenette pajamas are the latest thing in intimate wearing apparel. They're being made from colorful cottons and rayons. Just the thing for chafing dish suppers and Sunday morning breakfasts.

In selecting oranges for beverage purposes, or for any purpose in which the amount of juice is particularly important, remember that some varieties are much juicier than others. Size for size, the heavier fruit is always the juicier.

It's often helpful to have firmly fixed in your memory a few of the standard kitchen measures. One tablespoon equals three-quarters of a teaspoon; three teaspoons equal one tablespoon; sixteen tablespoons equal one cup; two cups equal one pint.

Acid Causes Discomfort

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Many things—diseases and emotions—gallstones and business depression—may cause indigestion. We discussed that yesterday. No single diet, therefore no diet alone will cure it.

Cases of indigestion, however, fall into great groups. One is acid dyspepsia. The symptoms are a discomfort in the stomach after meals. "My food cakes in my stomach," some patients say. There is "sour stomach," the regurgitation of acid food into the mouth. Constipation is often present, as are headaches. Many patients have discomfort not after, but before, meals. Certain foods relieve this more than others.

Such patients often are found to have ulcer of the stomach or duodenum. In some similar symptoms are due to nervousness. In general, all such patients will improve when certain rules of diet are observed.

This diet here described is planned for ambulatory patients—those who can get about to work, not those confined to bed or undergoing hospital treatment.

The housekeeper in this household must plan two kinds of meals—one for the patient, one for the rest of the family. They can often be combined, the patient eating what is helpful for him.

The foods which combine with the acid which is normally present in the stomach but here found in excess are the predominating ones in the diet. These are the proteins and the fats.

Milk and cream—half and half—is the standard sample of such a food. It has no irritating qualities, it has high caloric value and is soothing. Starting from that basis, foods containing milk and cream may be added—cream soups, custards, ice cream, creamed chicken, etc.

Eggs and lean meats are next. The breast of a young broiled chicken—every word there is valuable, breast, young, broiled (broiling breaks up the meat fibers and adds no fat as frying does—is a sample. Raw oysters are usually soothing.

Fruit juices rather than whole fruits, and cooked fruits, and certain vegetables without too much residue or irritating properties, such as mashed potatoes, lima beans, beans, spinach and carrots, furnish the necessary fruit and vegetable part of the diet.

Cereals should be thoroughly cooked.

Fresh white bread is usually very irritating. It should be served stale or toasted or just the crust used.

The three S's—sweet, sour and spicy—are to be avoided. Hence candy, sweet desserts, griddle cakes or waffles with molasses or syrup, salads with dressing, pickles, pepper, chili, horseradish, mustard and catsup come under the ban. Tomatoes, sauerkraut and cabbage are found uncomfortable by most patients. Fried foods also.

Tea, coffee and cocoa seem to cause no irritation. Alcoholic beverages should be thought of as prohibited by the constitution.

Six small meals rather than three large are advised.

Advise Tolerance and Activity

—By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE—

I have quoted several times in this column the old song called "Strangers Yet." It cites the tragedy of people who spend years in one another's company and yet are strangers with no understanding or sympathy.

Young people in their teens are often inclined to feel misunderstood and unappreciated, even when circumstances seem favorable and parents try to be loving and helpful, but the tragedy of a young person whose people think they have done enough when they provide her with the bare necessities of life is one of the most pitiful things in life.

"Dear Virginia Lee: Will you please help me? I am 16 and in the second year at high school. I do not live at home and am very dissatisfied. I live with two old maid aunts and a bachelor. I love them. They are good to me in their way, but I don't think anyone understands me.

"We are poor, I like better and higher things, but my parents laugh and make fun of me. My aunts say things to make me angry. I do have a mean temper. I say things back. They think I should see everything as they see it. I should have no opinions at all."

"My parents seem to care nothing for me. They think I never need anything and fuss when I do. They are having a hard time; so are my aunts. I haven't many clothes. I want to finish school. I need money; I do not have dates and have never asked them for money to go to shows and don't go out at night."

"I hate life. Sometimes I wish I were dead, everything is so cruel. I get so tired of the same old things. I think I will die if a change is not made. I am desperate. Please tell me what to do. Desperate. I can imagine how drab and dreary life is to you, my dear. Now let us see what we can suggest to brighten it. You say you love your aunts and they are good to you, but you don't agree and say mean things to one another which hurts both your feelings. Now, dear, they are older and are set in their ways. I should judge from your description of them that their ideas are formed forever. No use to try to change them, then, is it? And after all, they have a perfect right to their ideas. They are only wrong in that they expect you to think as they do and are hurt when you do not.

You are young, and however good your ideas may be they are probably not perfect. You will doubtless change many of them as you grow older and see more of life.

Very dear and good people can be awfully aggravating. I know. But make up your mind that you will not hurt them by talking back. Think to yourself that you don't agree with them, but you will not dispute them. Make yourself broadminded, allowing others to have their own views and trying to understand them so as to see what it is in their experiences that makes them feel that way.

Try to make their lives a little happier instead of expecting them to do for you. After all, you have a long, and probably glorious life ahead of you, and they have theirs behind them.

It is hard to be poor, I know, especially for a girl who is in school and wants to look nice. Couldn't you find little jobs to do after school and Saturdays that would bring you in a little money? Take care of babies during the evenings would be one way. You could do your home work while the children were asleep. Try it. You will feel better if you can get some money and buy yourself something pretty.

And as to the change in your life that you desire. Why, dear, lives change so fast they make you dizzy. Something is likely to happen any moment to change yours. Maybe you'll wish it hadn't happened. That is sometimes the case. Make up your mind to finish school if you possibly can. Also make up your mind that life is full of delightful things that may happen to you any minute, and look forward to them. And, lastly, write me again and let me know how you are getting along. I shall be so glad to hear you are feeling happier.

Talks About Face Lifting

—By GLADYS GLAD—

Judging from some of the letters, I have received recently, a number of my readers have acquired some rather rare ideas on the subject of face lifting. One woman places too much faith in the process. . . . Another discredits it entirely. . . . A third doubts the permanency of the results. . . . And so on. But all without fail, present to me the inquiry, "Can face lifting really be done successfully?"

To this inquiry I can truthfully reply, Yes, it is possible. But, may I add, the success of this operation depends upon three things. It depends, in the first place, upon the surgeon you employ. It depends, in the second place, upon your own physical condition, and it depends, in the third place, upon the care you give yourself after the operation.

Because facial surgery has become an important science it has attracted to itself a number of quacks. These quacks should be guarded against, for only the most reputable surgeon should be engaged for the delicate operation of face lifting. If you cannot afford to have the work done by a surgeon, don't have it done at all. For wrinkles are far preferable to the disfiguring scars that an unskilled surgeon's knife may leave.

You must be sure that you are in excellent health before you undergo such an operation. I know of one woman who developed all sorts of complications because, previously to the operation she had been so thin that her blood was taking anti-fat medicine. She recovered very slowly from the operation.

The face lifting operation is not particularly painful, as a local anesthetic is generally administered. But there are dressings to be worn and for the best results you should stay under your surgeon's care for several days after the operation. And be sure to follow his instructions for after-care to the letter! Sometimes the face swells up after the operation and the eyes appear drawn out of their natural shape. But don't let this alarm you, for the condition disappears after a few days.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Wrinkles
Miss 21, Polly and Constant Reader: You will have to restore the delicate tissue to health by daily nourishment. Lanolin is excellent cream for this purpose. Apply it generously to the wrinkled areas nightly before retiring. It is also good for dry, chapped skin.

Red Nose
O. K.: A red nose usually results from poor circulation. Take deep-breathing exercises when you rise in the morning. Get plenty of exercise and fresh air. Eliminate highly-seasoned foods and stimulating drinks from your diet. Bending exercises are effective in slenderizing the waistline.

Reducing
Anita: I think that a girl five feet tall and 17 years old should weigh about 110 pounds. I do not advise hot Epsom salts for reducing. If taken too often, they tend to overstimulate the heart. The safest and best way to reduce is by dieting and exercising. Constant Reader: The peroxide and ammonia solution may be applied several times a day. It will not promote the growth of the hair. The ammonia removes the oil from the hair, and enables the peroxide to penetrate more effectively.

By JOHN MAUBETSCH
All-American Halfback—1914
Written Especially for Central Press and Xenia Gazette

For the first time in four years, those who delve into the football form sheets in search of outstanding talent are without a heroic halfback around whose stalwart shoulders they can drape the royal robes with any great degree of unanimity.

To be sure there is no lack of luminaries at these important positions, as a perusal of the performance on gridirons throughout the length and breadth of the country this season will prove, but nevertheless there are no Cagles or Granges for nomination by acclamation.

During his three years of service, football and military, the sorrel-topped Christian Keener Cagle saved those who would cross his gridiron.

John Maubetsch's greatness is such a manner for the West Point Cadets that there was little room left for disagreement. He was a standout in 1927, 1928 and 1929.

Prior to Cagle's triumphant entry, the other red head, Grange, of Illinois, was a big aid in preserving peace among those who hoist the heroes on the pedestal, by history-making exploits in 1923, 1924 and 1925 that won him immortality without a dissenting voice.

As there was something of a comparative void in the 1926 season, between the reign of Grange and Cagle, so there was likewise an absence this year of an ace halfback standing head and shoulders above his contemporaries, in popular opinion, at least.

Next season may continue the cycle with another Grange, Cagle or Jim Thorpe emblazoning his name across the football horizon to win undying fame. Only the gods of the gridiron know his identity, but right now he may be receiving his freshman letter at some large institution.

Battles of W. V. W.
I say large institution advisedly, because as a general thing it is the back with a strong supporting cast who is able to perform in a spectacular manner and before metropolitan gatherings, both of which are almost necessities to establish him as a star.

In the smaller schools it is seldom possible for a back with better than average ability to get sufficient assistance to enable him to show at his best, or the opposition is not of high enough caliber to attract more than passing attention to his deeds.

If he shines against mediocre opposition it is looked upon as nothing extraordinary, and any brilliant performance against possibly one or two strong opponents, at best, is considered a "flash in the pan." Thus, many a potential All-American player may figuratively bloom unseen in the gridiron deserts, while the same player among teammates of near his own ability might hear his work praised from coast to coast.

Of course there are exceptions to this, where the individual ability of a player is so great that his almost single-handed play attracts attention, regardless of the opposition. One such in our section of the country is Clifford "Clip" Battles, of West Virginia Wesleyan. Battles' forte is ball carrying.

Playing with a team that is seldom able to get him across the line of scrimmage and into the open, Battles finds it necessary to do most of his spectacular running in a broken field, either by taking the kickoff or returning punts. Against New York U. Georgetown, Navy and Duquesne he made a total of seven runs of more than sixty-five yards each to score touchdowns. Coach Bill Ingram, of Navy, placed him on an all-opponent team with nine Notre Dame players and Wesley Peeler, of Ohio State.

Stars of Mid-West
Again proving that football ability knows no geographical boundaries, as well as accurately indicating the spread of the great fall sport, the outstanding halfbacks this season, as for the past several years, were scattered over the entire country. Hardly any section, or even any state was without its popular heroes at these positions.

Many were specialists in running, passing or kicking, while others were particularly strong in some phase of defense, while many others were able to do the general assignments of their positions without any apparent weakness in either.

As the mid-west was especially well blessed with strong teams this season, it is only natural to find an abundant supply of high ranking halfbacks in that section.

In Marchmont Schwartz and Marty Brill, Coach Knute Rockne has two great halfbacks who are big factors in Notre Dame's unusual success. Both of them are able to perform their tasks in a highly efficient manner or they would not hold their positions against such competition as the wealth of material the Irish squad provides.

In addition to his ball-carrying, Schwartz is also an exceptionally fine passer and very strong in defending against an aerial attack.

Northwestern and Michigan also had stellar backs in "Hard Luck" Hank Bruder and Jack Wheeler, respectively. Bruder's inescapable jinxes kept him from receiving the consideration that would have otherwise been his. O'Neill, of Detroit; Sisk, of Marquette; Gil Berry, of Illinois; and Monnett, of Michigan State, were other halfbacks in this section whose work merits praise.

Southern Heroes
The south again produced a number of outstanding representatives who held their own in inter-sectional competition and these boasted their share of classy halfbacks. John Henry (Flash) Suther, of Alabama, elicited much favorable comment by his consistently good work, especially his feat of ripping the strong Kentucky line to pieces, as did Don Zimmerman, of Tulane, one of Dixie's outstanding players. "Buddy" Hackman, of Tennessee; Dickens and Chandler, of Georgia; Bill Murray, of Duke, and "Shipwreck" Kelly, of Kentucky, also stood high in the experts' estimations. Although Kelly was handicapped somewhat by injuries.

In the southwest, "Cy" Leland, of Texas Christian, made good use of his speed, coupled with a knack of playing football, to enjoy another successful season, while Weller, of Haskell, attracted more attention to the Indian school by his play.

The far west produced Christensen, of Utah, as its standard bearer. Another bumper crop of halfbacks was harvested on the Pacific coast, with Stud Bennett, of St. Mary's, providing a sample of their caliber against Fordham for the edification of the elite east.

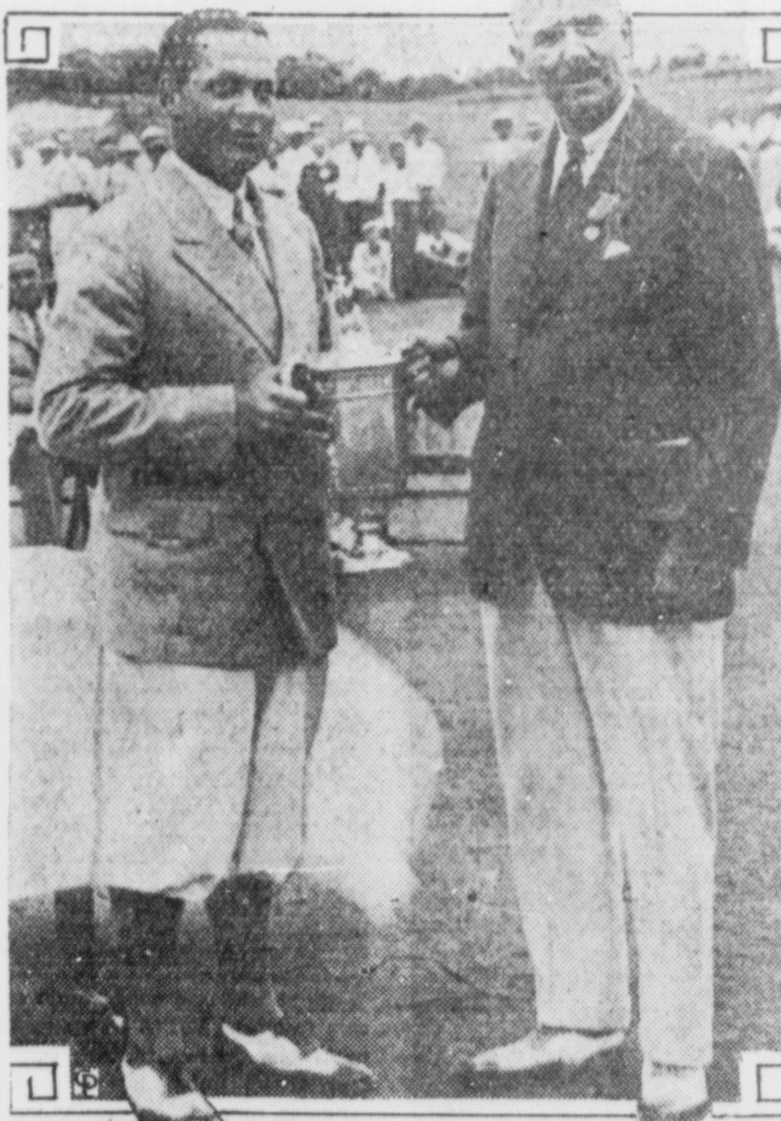

His kicking, passing and all-around work played a big part in the coast team's victorious invasion. Johnny Kitzmiller, of Oregon; John Ellington State; Bufford, of Washington, and Ernie Pinkert, of Southern California, also come in for plenty of recognition in that section, the latter excelling particularly at blocking.

Jim Murphy, of Fordham, ranked as one of the east's leading scorers and one of the big threats in the Dartmouth backfield, with Donner of Dartmouth; Heller, of Pitt, and Lou Kim, of Navy, rated high in their section, where quarterbacks and fullbacks appeared to grab more of the glory than their invaluable assistants.

KEEPING

Stove League Gossip

They say that Art Shires may get another American League trial. He was sent to Milwaukee by Washington and the Browns, closely connected with Milwaukee might be able to use the noisy first baseman in St. Louis.

The Three-L league, smallest of the non-draft circuits, meets Jan. 8 and undoubtedly will discuss the matter of the major leagues' ultimatum regarding the draft question.

With Evansville, Danville and Peoria operated by big league clubs the Three-L is expected to come into the fold.

Rogers Hornsby will be a strict disciplinarian with his Chicago Cubs, working them daily from 11 to 2 during spring training. "Three hours work a day may seem a snap to some folk but not to ball players."

Joe Judge seems to go on forever. Next season will be his sixteenth with Washington. If he again leads American league first basemen in fielding it will be for the ninth consecutive time.

Joe Dugan will have at least one more year in the American league. Detroit has taken on the old Jumping Joe of Yankee pennant fame as a utility infielder.

LANG FALCONS WILL PLAY SPRINGFIELD

Anxious to improve its present record of four victories against two defeats, the Lang Chevrolet Falcons, Xenia pro basketball quintet, has booked a game with the Hartwell College Commerce of Springfield for Wednesday night on the state National Guard armory floor here.

The game will be called about 8:15 o'clock and will be preceded by a preliminary starting at 7:30 P. M.

The Springfield college is annually represented by a strong court combination and this season's team is said to be no exception to the rule as it has won three out of five games played to date against strong opponents in the City League in the Reeper city. The team is composed of ex-high school stars.

The preliminary game will mark the debut of the Xenia girls' basketball team, which will represent the Cincinnati Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad this season. The feminine quintet will meet the Westwood Cubs of Dayton, Coach Paul Fuller being anxious to see how his team will perform in a practice game.

APPEAL DECISION ON LIQUOR CHARGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Attorneys today planned to appeal to the supreme court a decision of the United States circuit court of appeals which upheld the validity of the eighteenth amendment and prohibition laws.

The decision was made in affirming the conviction of Louis E. Thibault, of Windsor, Vt., who had appealed from the United States district court in Vermont. Thibault was convicted of selling two pints of whiskey and sentenced to a year and a day in the federal reformatory in Ohio.

Although the decision was based on an action similar to the one in New Jersey, in which Federal Judge William Clark held the amendment had not been properly ratified, it was held as to not directly affect the Clark ruling, which is being appealed to the supreme court.

EAST HIGH PLAYS

East High School's basketball team will play its first home game of the current season Thursday night this week, facing the Wilberforce Academy quintet at East High gymnasium. Pettiford, Adams, N. Pyrtle, Scrivens, Greene and Williamson are the leading candidates for regular berths on East's court combination. A preliminary game will involve the East High "Lion Tamers" and a sophomore team.

ALPHA BOOKS TROY

The Alpha K. of P. Independent basketball quintet will meet a newly-organized Troy independent team on the Knights of Pythias Hall floor at Alpha Thursday night at 8 o'clock. No preliminary game has been arranged for the evening.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—In the absence of outside buying demand, or of special incentive from financial and industrial sources, all sections of the stock market moved sluggishly through a narrow price range this morning. Transactions fell under 200,000 shares in the first half hour, and trading was confined to a comparatively small number of industrial, utility and specialty favorites. Prices slumped off at the opening, rallied near the close of the first hour, and reacted in the second hour.

"Doctor recommended it," says Miller, of Camden, N. J.

Camden, N. J.—"More than fourteen years ago my doctor recommended Pluto Water to me as a preventive of constipation," says Louis H. Miller, local resident. "I knew it, of course, as a prompt relief measure, but this was a new use. Ever since that time, my whole family has used it, and we would not be without it for a minute. The treatment is simple—a small dose, in plain hot or cold water, each morning upon arising. It keeps the system always up to par, and helps ward off many serious complaints."

Pluto Mineral Water is Nature's own remedy. It acts promptly (thirty minutes to two hours) and cannot gripe or injure delicate tissues. Physicians recommend it because they know it is non-habit-forming. Pluto Water, bottled at French Lick Springs, Ind., is on sale at drug stores everywhere, and at fountains.

Who's To Blame?

IT'S HARD to tell who was at fault. Like many accidents, it just happened—and the owners will have to pay for their own repairs. Collision insurance would have taken care of it. Collision insurance pays for the damage done to your own car in an accident.

If you don't have collision insurance on your car ask your Ohio Farmers Agent. He has a new form of policy. It is called a 50-50 collision policy. It is economical and gives maximum protection.

$1,041,000 PROFITS

More than a million dollars in profits was paid by this Association to its depositors or credited to their accounts in 1930. A large part of our depositors have left their Interest and Dividends with us, there to compound in 1931.

This is a splendid demonstration of the dependability of a well-managed building association, under all conditions. As we have before pointed out, our margin of earnings is fixed by definite contracts in every case and the rate of this gross profit is not varied by changing business conditions.

For 56 years this Association has paid good dividends to its depositors every six months, with unvarying promptness. Every dollar entrusted to it in that time has been faithfully kept and there has never been any shrinkage of principal. We now offer you complete safety for your savings and the best returns which we can earn through prudent business.

answered when asked where he studied nature.

His lessons have not all been confined to the woods, however. He attended Lebanon College and Washington State College, altho not graduating from either.

"I write poetry to help pass away the time, to keep my mind off these gloomy surroundings, and—I hope—to earn a little money to help support my family," he said.

His wife and two children, a 15 year old girl and 11 year old boy, are living in Middletown with her mother.

"I am treated fine and can't kick but I miss the freedom of the outdoors and I miss my family most of all," he remarked in a half-cold voice, "but I hope that my parole will go through."

His hearing for parole is set for Oct. 31, 1931.

He was convicted for writing a letter to Frank Howard demanding "$5,000 or your life." He entered the penitentiary September 19, 1930, and if not paroled, will not be released until 1935.

The Theater

Proof of the changing times in Hollywood is conveyed in the fact that Oscar Apfel, who will play the important part of the sheriff in the forthcoming talkie version of "The Squaw Man," assisted Cecil B. DeMille, in the direction when the first version was made in 1913.

The scenes for that silent film, in New York playing in "Another Man's Wife," it is reported he will be brought back to play in Gloria Swanson's next picture. Others signed for this film are Ben Lyon and Barbara Kent, and Lee McCarey will direct. Owsley recently completed two other roles in Hollywood, one in "Roseland" opposite Barbara Stanwick and the other in "Free Love."

Wynne Gibson has been started on his way to a motion picture career by an arresting performance in a Los Angeles legitimate theater. She has played opposite Jack Oakie in "June Moon," signed a long term contract with Paramount and has just been assigned the feminine lead in "Cavalleria Street," the story in which a blackmailer falls in love with his intended victim.

Twenty Years '10- Ago -'30

Wilson Galloway has been employed as physical director at the Y. M. C. A., succeeding I. C. Elder, who resigned.

Mr. Mel Beal, the well-known horseman, has opened a horse shoeing shop in the rear of the Conwell hardware at "Cap Tummins' old stand."

The W. Second St. speedway was the scene of the first snow racing of the season and fully a dozen snow horses were out.

A transaction was closed whereby Mr. Ed Thornhill, the Whiteman St. liveryman, becomes the owner of the Chas. Kelso Bldg., on S. Detroit St. now occupied by the Central Electric and Supply Co.

Farrell MacDonald, who recently turned in his best performance as a guide in Warner Brothers' "River's End," will have a good part. The dialogue is being done by Elsie Janis.

Carmel Myers' flyer in vaudeville will be shorter than planned. Warner Brothers wired her an offer to play an important part in "Sven-gall," the new John Barrymore picture, and so she will return to Hollywood after one week at the Palace in New York.

Dorothy Christy, whose attractive combed-back coiffure you may remember from "So This is London," will make a picture each for First National and Warner. She appears in "Big Business Girl," the Loretta Young starring vehicle at First National and Winnie Lightner's "Red Hot Sinners" at Warner's.

Tommy Clifford, the Irish lad brought to this country for "Song O' My Heart," who was so homesick a few weeks ago that he talked of nothing else, has changed his mind since his contract at Fox has expired. He has now obtained an agent and will free-lance. He can stay here only until April under his present passport but if he can get another contract he can remain until the agreement expires.

Although Marion Owsley, the young stage actor brought from New York to play Ann Harding's brother in "Holiday" is now again

CHAPTER 44

The apartment was so densely clouded with smoke that it stifled and choked her. The beams! She had forgotten all about them in her struggle below-stairs! She ran to the kitchenette and turned off the gas. A little longer and the whole place would have been afire. The kettle was only a charred shape containing a mass of scum.

When Joretta had opened all the windows, she collapsed onto the bed, crying as if her heart would break. She was completely wretched. So tired that every muscle ached, her hands were ruined, her clothes and hair disheveled as they had never been in her life. A kettle and a half pound of ham burned to cinders, nothing for dinner, an expensive garment torn to shreds, others stained with oil and soot—to save three or four dollars.

Anger and disgust mingled with physical discomfort and misery, and she sobbed unrestrainedly. It was so that Jim found her when he arrived.

The apartment was dark and cold when he came in. Windows all open and a chill wind flopping the window curtains gleefully. No sound. He was so frightened that he found the light switch with difficulty. The lights revealed Joretta lying across the bed, face down, the golden hair tossed wildly away, her face streaked with tears and dirt, her frock soiled and damply bedraggled. Was she asleep—or—

He touched her tentatively, fearing to startle her—fearing even worse. To his relief, her eyes opened and blinked at him for a moment in bewilderment. "Why, Jim, are you home?"

"Joretta, darling, what is the matter with you? Are you hurt or—something?"

Then the whole hideous melodrama came back to her and she sat up with difficulty, furtively moving her strained muscles. Half crying, half angry with herself, she told him all about it. At first, he laughed; then seeing that she considered it a very poor joke as yet, he tried to comfort and reassure her. Also expressed his opinion of their middle-class neighbor in no gentle terms.

"It's all right to be neighborly, but you will have to use your judgment, honey-girl. Tell her if she wants to park over here all the time, it's so much an hour for space and a new ticket every time she drives in. And that you don't need her advice nor anyone's else. If you can't do better, put on the high hat and tell her who you are, that you don't have to be a laundress just because you married a poor man. What would your dad say if he knew what you did to-day?" He kissed her swollen, blistered hands. "Joretta, don't you ever again be so foolish as to work like that, just to economize. You see, it doesn't pay, anyway."

"But—but—other women do their own laundry."

"Oh, sure. But in the first place, you don't have to, even if you did know how to do it; and the next place, you must remember you were not made for such work. A one-cylinder motor can't run an ocean liner, my dear. Forget it."

"And—there's nothing for dinner."

"Better yet. Doll yourself up and we'll step out for dinner and go somewhere. We work and stay at home until we will be regular hermits. That's one reason this floored you today. You've been in too close. I want you to get out more, even if I can't go with you."

"But it's no fun going without you, dear."

"Well, of course. But I mean to matinees and so on. Get Mrs. Davis and take her sometimes. That would be a treat for her. And make new friends—not like Maidsa though."

"But that all costs money, Jim."

"Why, you precious little roose, I'm making money now—plenty, so you can do things like that. I've made a regular miser out of you."

Jim's salary seemed like such a trifling amount to Joretta that her ideas of economizing had reached the extremes and she felt as if she never could be safe in spending a dollar for pleasure when their surplus was almost nothing and their resources so alarming uncertain.

But his suggestion that they go out for the evening was a most welcome thought on this special evening. A hot tubbing revived her and soothed her aching muscles, cold cream somewhat repaired the damage to her hands and within a half hour she was quite her own radiant self. "Shure, and the laundress has gone," she laughed. "I'm sorry I let the old washing get the best of me, Jim dear. But it all sounded so simple when Maidsa told me how I could save the laundry bill. I guess I'm not much good to you, Jim."

He took her in his arms. "Don't you ever say that again, Joretta. You are the most wonderful wife a man ever had. If other people wouldn't meddle in our affairs, it would be much easier. You will just have to gently but firmly let Maidsa know she can't run you and your house. Guess I'll have to find a new place to work on the carburetor, too. Couple o' rubber-necks hanging around over there. Some automobile men for whom the shop owners are doing extra work. They stood there watching me for awhile last night, asking questions that I dodged the best I could. Then before they left, they talked with Maidsa, the owner, again. I couldn't hear what they were saying, so I brought my stuff home last night instead of leaving it in the locker. It's not safe to go there any more because I've got the thing too near done to risk anyone snooping around. It's working out just as I planned, too. Soon as I get the needle-valve done, I'll be ready to test it out."

"I don't know what on, though. Might get Davis to let me use his car, but it's a flivver and the fittings are all made for a bigger engine. Made them at first to fit the Montezuma, you know."

"That's just the reason, Jim, why we shouldn't be going out for dinner and things like this. You need all your money for your work."

"On, well, we have to live. We both need a change. Come on, hurry up and don't argue with me. I pretended to command her, her ready response to his suggestion in spite of her remonstrances had told Jim she needed recreation. But she would never complain, nor suggest it for herself, loyal little pal."

"What kind of a car would you need?" Joretta persisted, much more interested in the subject of the carburetor than an evening's entertainment.

"Oh, a Packard or a Cadillac. Sounds easy, doesn't it? Of course, I might pick up an ancient model for almost nothing—but can't afford that even yet. Might by the time I get ready for it. Next thing is to find a shop near here where I can get without curiosity hounds hanging around. Maybe Bob or Davis can tell me of a place. How about getting Bob and Stella to go along with us tonight? Or would you prefer that we go alone?"

"Why, I think it would be nice to ask them. We really owe them a lot, they have done so much for us."

So it was arranged, and Stella's father suggested that if they were going all the way downtown they had better take the flivver. It was typical of the family spirit that he should. Bob had no car now. He and Stella were saving for one in the spring and planning to be married.

It was the first time Joretta had ridden in a car since the morning she was married, and even the rumbling little sedan seemed luxurious to her now. Jim let Bob and Stella suggest the place to go.

MESSAGE TO SOLONS FAVORS EQUITABLE ADJUSTMENT OF TAX

tionary was barely mentioned by the governor. He declared that it would never have happened "if the state had long ago adopted for its welfare institutions a proper program of rehabilitation, such as was already well under way at the very hour the fire occurred."

As for welfare recommendations, the governor called the attention of the legislators to the program set forth by his welfare advisory commission, which he said should enable the incoming and future administrations to deal with existing conditions and the future needs of state institutions.

Among the important welfare projects deserving of especial attention are: a further increase in institutional facilities—a matter which he characterized as "imperative"—and the rehabilitation of the Ohio penitentiary.

Warmly commending the record of the eighty-eighth general assembly, which he said would "illumine the pages of Ohio legislative history as worthy of emulation," Governor Cooper reviewed at some length the history of his administration.

He pointed out the "forward-looking conservation program," and also made mention of the new election code, which he declared has resulted in a greater saving and convenience to the people. Other "forward looking" measures, he said, were the restoration of the state library; provision for a new state office building; a revised and strengthened blue sky law, to give investors greater protection and tax reduction to the amount of two million dollars.

DEATH CLAIMS JOHN SHORT, PROMINENT AS RETIRED FARMER

John C. Short, 72, prominent retired farmer and a member of the Xenia Twp. Board of Trustees, died at his home, 951 N. Detroit St., Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock. Mr. Short had been in good health and had eaten breakfast with his family Monday morning but suffered a stroke of apoplexy about 9 a. m. from which he never rallied.

He was born in Hamilton County, June 28, 1858, the son of Wilson and Eva Jane Conroy Short, and lived there until his marriage forty-four years ago to Miss Hattie L. Moore, of this county. Previous to moving to this city four years ago Mr. and Mrs. Short had resided on the Stone Road, south of Xenia, for thirteen years. At the time of his death Mr. Short was serving his second term as a Xenia Twp. trustee. He had also served as president of the Xenia Twp. Farm Bureau and as master of Xenia Twp. Grange, had been a member of the advisory council of the Miami Valley Milk Producers' Association and was a trustee of the Second United Presbyterian Church for a number of years.

Besides his widow he is survived by five sons; William, near Xenia; Leroy, near Dayton; Earl, who is deputy clerk of courts of Greene County and clerk of the board of education, and who resides at home; Raymond, Philadelphia and Frank, New Lexington, O. Three grandchildren survive and two sisters; Mrs. Elsie McGrew, Cincinnati and Mrs. Emma Meier, Hamilton County.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Second United Presbyterian Church, with burial in Woodland Cemetery. Friends may call at the Short home any time Wednesday evening.

"Well, if you want to throw a real party, let's go to the Villa Venice. It's all of twenty miles from the loop on the other side, but since we're not walking, who cares? It used to be the 'House That Jack Built,' and it's some house, I can tell you. No rats livin' there."

Bob's very inadequate description was about as near as words could do justice to the Villa Venice. Joretta had to admit that it out-hollywooded Hollywood for bizarre effects. Garish and hand-some decorations inside and superb gardens all about the building that was set far back from the road. The cafe was an immense glittering room with a generous floor in the center for dancing, and it was crowded.

When they had found a table and given their order, Joretta looked about her. Then she started in surprise. To their left, at a wall table, a man was dining alone. What coincidence that almost the first place she went in Chicago she should see someone she knew. There was no mistaking that oddly shaped and distinguished looking head, even where she least expected to see it.

The A & P is sending Henry to College!

That's the way his mother puts it. Really, though, we are doing no such thing. We're establishing no foundations, no fellowships, no scholarships. We're just plodding along—simple grocers—doing our best—selling housewives their tapiooca and Bermuda onions, their maraschino cherries and Idaho potatoes, their chili sauce and their porterhouse steaks—generally for less money than they pay elsewhere. (Sometimes a little less—often a good bit less.) Henry's mother's bill averaged $72 a month before she started trading with the A & P. Since then it's been $60 a month—and the food, she'll have you know, is better! That $12 a month over the years runs into real money.
